

I am really sorry for your loss and I know that it couldn't have been easy, but your son shall never be forgotten. His story is told to every Moha Stores student and engraved into each of their hearts. Your son was both a hero and died as one, leaving a legacy that shall live on forever. By the stories I've read on his website and seen in his movie, "Taking Chance", he was a good man that touched the hearts of many and served his country well, hopefully as much as he dreamed. I'm glad I learned about a man like your son, I've never really heard a story so unique. I hope you never forget how many people care about your son, and how great of a job you did telling your son's story. I hope he lives on forever. We thank him for his service.

From,

Saraya Hildreth
